

Artist statement:

After enjoying cuisines of various cultures, sometimes, I wish for a taste of home and this snack, garri sokis, that takes less than 10 minutes to make, satisfies that wish. From garri, which is made from dried cassava, to Nido--powdered milk which I recently found myself substituting with whole milk for scarcity purposes, to pure sugar cubes which remind me of having breakfast at 6am in Ghana before rushing to school for early morning assembly, I am able to recreate the sweet and simple taste of home.

BarbaraAgbotey01.JPGBarbaraAgbotey02.JPGBarbaraAgbotey03.JPGBarbaraAgbotey04.JPGBarbaraAgbotey05.JPG

BarbaraAgbotey06.JPGBarbaraAgbotey07.JPGBarbaraAgbotey08.JPGBarbaraAgbotey09.JPGBarbaraAgbotey10.JPG

BarbaraAgbotey11.JPGBarbaraAgbotey12.JPGBarbaraAgbotey13.JPGBarbaraAgbotey14.JPGBarbaraAgbotey15.jpg

BarbaraAgbotey16.jpgBarbaraAgbotey17.jpgBarbaraAgbotey18.JPGBarbaraAgbotey19.JPGBarbaraAgbotey20.JPG

BarbaraAgbotey21.JPGBarbaraAgbotey22.JPGBarbaraAgbotey23.JPGBarbaraAgbotey24.JPGBarbaraAgbotey25.JPG