

Artist statement:

Littering is a topic that is talked about often yet treated apathetically. These ten images taken on the streets of West Philly reflect how on the outside, the bright lights of the city distract any viewer from the intensity of this issue. However, as I took a closer look, it was noticeable how normalized littering is in our environment, so much so that trash almost fits right in as embellishment.