The background of the image is a complex, abstract pattern composed of numerous thin, black, wavy lines that create a sense of depth and motion. Interspersed among these lines are several large, solid black shapes that resemble organic forms such as leaves, petals, or perhaps stylized representations of human figures. These dark shapes vary in size and orientation, some appearing to float or drift across the frame. The overall effect is one of a dynamic, fluid environment.

Chocolate production and exportation is one of the major sources of income for Ghana. Kingsbite chocolate is one chocolate brand that has a monopoly in this industry. Despite the love and hardwork that goes into the production of chocolate, very few precautions are taken towards the preservation of cocoa farms. Over the years, although efficient methods of growing cocoa have been introduced to farmers, such methods have major negative side effects on farms, and the country is now being forced to deal with these consequences. A country that was once known for its pure and rich vegetation is now suffering the consequences of deforestation, mainly on cocoa farms.

Invisible Cities Studies

The background features a complex, abstract design composed of numerous thin, wavy lines in various colors. These lines are primarily shades of pink, purple, blue, and yellow, creating a sense of depth and movement. They overlap and curve across the entire frame, forming organic, cloud-like shapes. The overall effect is reminiscent of a microscopic view of a biological tissue or a digital representation of a complex signal.
